Advertising - Continue reading below 1 exploding kitten puree between Uno and Russian This game requires players to draw cards from the stack (and follow the instructions on them) until someone pulls the exploding kitten card and loses the game. 2 Santorini Santorini is a strategy game that involves taking space on the board to build buildings in front of your opponent. It's simple enough for your 8-year-old kid to understand, but engaging is enough to keep you busy too. 3 Guess who? Here's another child classic that even adults can have fun with. Each player chooses a person from a wild cast of characters. Opponents then take turns suffocate each other so or not the question of their choices until they can deduce who it is. 4 Guess who? Friends edition of Or, take things on a notation with friends version of the game. 5 Bananagrams Bananagrams is a much-loved simplified version of Scrabble. Players are struggling to complete their own crossword puzzle and use their tiles in front of their opponent - no eddy points required. 6 Carcassonne In this strategy game, players organize tiles to create geography areas and then position specific game pieces on different areas to qualify for them and earn points. 7 Monopoly Agreement In this fast-paced card version of the infamous board game, players compete to earn three different sets of properties. The plays are directed by maps that each player draws (action combos, property, house/hotel, and money) and what they choose to do with them. 8 Travel ticket Don't worry, you won't be a hobby train to appreciate it. The fight takes place to control a longer train route than your opponent, collecting maps of certain train carriages and performing targets. 9 7 Wonders Duel In this two-game version of the original game, each player draws cards to build the wonders of the world and take control of their opponent's capital. 10 Qwirkle This game is part strategy and part luck in the draw. Earn points by matching tiles according to their shape or color until the tiles remain in the bag grab - the opponent with the most points at the end wins. 11 Forbidden Island Instead of fighting against each other, the Forbidden Island players work together so the island doesn't sink in. They collect treasures along the way and then make strategic decisions about what they really need to save the island. 12 Jenga In this classic, players remove wooden blocks from the tower one by one until someone launches its inevitable collapse. 13 Topple Opposite of Jenga, Topple requires players to add pieces to the platform without tipping over and losing everything. 14 Stratego It's like chess... but not chess. The ultimate goal is to protect your flag. What it takes to get there is a lot of strategy (hence the title) and predictable. In the beginning, each player arranges his side of the battlefield with bombs and military members who serve different purposes - and there's no going back once you start. 15 Rummikub U Rummikub, players put their tiles as maps (using numbers and colors instead of numbers and costumes) to runs and responds — very similar to Rummy. 16 Battleship Back to Your Childhood with this classic. Opponents position small ships on their own oceans and then try to guess another player's location by firing shots. The first to sink other boats wins the battle. 17 Triominos This tile-matching game pushes things up with domino trysts. In a race to earn points and get rid of their tiles, players must secure two of the three numbers per game piece match two of the other that has already been set. 18 Scrabble In this traditional word game, players use letters in hand to add words to the board that connect to words that have already been attached - creating a kind of crossword puzzle. Some letters cost more points and can be multiplied when laid on certain spaces on the game board. 19 Trivial Pursuit This crowd-pleased can also be played one-on-one. Players move around the board answering trivia questions along the way to earn a little colored triangle by playing pieces that represent different categories. The one to complete your pie triangles first wins. 20 Connect 4 How can something so simple be so much fun? Children and adults like to try to outsmart their opponent in this 3-D version of tic-tac-toe. 21 Penté Each player gets his own set of colored glass game pieces strategically to place on the board. The goal is to pinch bits of your opponent between yours to grab them. This content is created and supported by a third party and imported into this page to help users provide their email addresses.
